

Cella seed notes

These notes are seed data. They exist so a development environment has attachments with real files behind them: an image, a photo, a PDF, a text file and a spreadsheet.

Every file lives in the shared public development bucket under the seed/v1/ prefix.

The rows that point at them are created by `pnpm seed`, and the objects themselves are published once by a maintainer with `pnpm seed:assets`.

Things you can try with this file:

- open it in the attachment sheet
- edit its description and mention a member
- download it and check the size matches what the table shows

Nothing here is confidential. Edit, delete and re-upload as much as you like; a reseed brings the rows back and the objects are never removed from the bucket.
